"This judicial action, like the one that the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled against the last time we were in this situation, undermines every principle of transparency and accountability," Greg Costigianatos, a spokesman for the governor, said Friday. "This administration is committed to working with the court to ensure that the people of Jersey receive their fair day in court. We will continue to hold Christie accountable regardless of the outcome of this appeal."

Christie has consistently denied requests to appoint a private investigation firm for the private investigation of his finances and has suggested that his lawyers were acting in a private capacity within the public sector.. Christie's office said Friday that the governor feels good about the ruling. "We have not had anything to worry about," spokesman Jim McGrath said in a statement.. The decision is a victory for the Republican governor but comes on the day that the New Jersey Supreme Court ruled unanimously that his attorney general had unlawfully sought records concerning state employee pensions.. According to an analysis by the Institute for the Study of War, ISIS is already making the case that they are superior to the US-led coalition fighting the group in Syria and Iraq. By using social media in a propaganda platform, the Islamic State is making the case to its followers that they are the superior "community" rather than the "government" fighting ISIS in Syria, writes Andrew Gans..
